Nevada State Bank Donates Building to Local Charity in Time for Christmas

(Reno, NV)- The Northern Nevada Children's Cancer Foundation (NNCCF) announced today that Nevada State Bank has donated a building to the organization just in time for the holidays. The organization held a dedication ceremony on Tuesday, December 22, 2009. The NNCCF Board of Directors and staff as well as representatives from Nevada State Bank were in attendance to celebrate this momentous occasion.

The building, located at 3550 Barron Way in Reno, will house the organization's offices in addition to storage and event space. Built in 1998, the facility includes 800 square feet of office space and 200 square feet of warehouse.

"Sometimes it's more than dollars that can make a difference for a non-profit organization," said Kevin Sullivan, Nevada State Bank executive vice president. "By providing office and warehouse space to Northern Nevada Children's Cancer Foundation, we hope to give them added capacity to help the children and their families. It's a holiday gift that will keep on contributing to our community through their good work."

"There aren't words to describe how amazing this is for our organization. It is so much more than just a building, it is a gift that will allow us increased ability to help local families. Northern Nevada Children's Cancer Foundation is the only organization that provides support to local families affected by childhood cancer. We will be able to utilize every aspect of the space for our offices, events and storage, saving funds that can go directly to the families," said Julie Tholl DeJan, executive director of NNCCF.
